

Payment Deadline Procedure Change

As you know, students who have outstanding balances on their accounts at the payment deadline are dropped from classes. The Technical College System of Georgia is recommending a change to the way student accounts are checked at the payment deadline. To be in compliance with this recommendation, beginning in Summer Semester 2015, West Georgia Technical College will be changing the way it looks at a student's balance. The change will consider any outstanding balance on the account – not just a balance for the next semester. This change will affect only a small number of students who would have a charge to their account for the current semester after registering for the next semester. These situations are commonly caused by a financial aid change or a withdrawal during the semester. If you have questions about this change, you may email tema.blair@westgatech.edu. Thank you.
